Learn to take digital photos with award winning photographer

Rick Wright

This 2-hour workshop will give students a taste of the power, color, and mystery of shooting photographs in low light and nighttime. We will start the session with a discussion of the basics: ISO, tripod use, Live View Focusing, cable releases, and White Balance. We will also explode as many Myths about Night Photography as we can.

Then, once briefed on the basics, the class will head out into Night and start practicing the newfound skills. Rick will provide instruction in-the-field, and will illustrate the process to get everyone started on their own image making. During the hours of this workshop, we will be in Crossover Light (between daylight and full night sky). One of the best times to make low light photographs.

Please bring: penlight or phone, camera, tripod, empty memory card, extra battery (if you have one), cable release (or remote trigger) if you have one.
